Traditional Sound Healer

- Trades time for money through one-off events.
- Requires significant investment in expensive instruments.
- Primarily hosts in-person events.
- Reaches a limited audience.
- Client turn over is usually 3-4 events leaving the sound healer in constant search of new clients.
- Growth potential is reliant on physical event opportunities.
- Experience is often limited to the use of a few instruments, such as singing bowls, and the facilitator's voice, which may not provide a comprehensive sonic experience.

Sonic Meditation Facilitator

- Opportunities to white label products and integrate them into existing programs.
- Learn frequency as you grow and share the tools and resources with your community.
- Unites a diverse community through the exploration of frequency, blending science and spirituality.
- Generates multiple revenue streams.
- New music monthly that's creatively tuned to the collective energies of Astrology and Human Design.
- Facilitates deep experiences through the use of pre-recorded music and powerful speakers, going beyond the limitations of acoustic instruments.
- Offers the ability to sell music to participants, allowing them to continue their sonic journey at home, resulting in profound and lasting benefits.
